PARAMA, Oct. 7.—Charges of paramilitary were placed today in over 1000 holes which had been drilled in the Gambos dyke preparatory to its destruction. Each hole contains from eighty to 100 pounds of dynamite, making in the aggregate the largest blast ever shot off.
The inflow of water from the lake through the discharge pipes is causing the Culebra cut to fill rapidly and it is estimated that there will be only a few feet difference between the level of the lake and the Culebra cut on the morning of October 19 when the completion of the dyke is to occur.
Porten units of the Atlantic and Pacific, including two ladders, are ready to go through the lake locks for the purpose of removing the remainder of the Gambos dyke after the explosion.
Shower Lake on the Pacific side is rising rapidly and it is considered probable that in case of urgency a dam will be passed through the end of some time this month.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—The provisions of the "cat and mouse act," permitting prisoners to be released temporarily when suffering from the effects of "hunger strikes," appear to apply only to the militant suffragettes. Albert Davis, sentenced to a term of imprisonment in Bedford Jail for theft, announced to the magistrate his intention of starting a "hunger strike." No attempt was made to feed him forcibly and he died this morning. The coroner returned a verdict of "death from natural causes."

American visitors were the chief purchasers, but the Gawk-war of Baroda bought no fewer than thirty-seven paintings, which will be sent to India. Mr. Flemmell's landscapes represent Alpine scenery and he has been asked by the Gawk-war to visit India and do in the Himalayas what he has done in the Alps. He will accept the offer and go to India next year.

War Department Refuses to Participate in Chicago Convention.
Secretary Charges National Guard Officers Acted in Bad Faith.

Declares Citizen Soldiers Violated Promises in New Pay Bill.
[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]
WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Oct. 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Discussions between the War Department and the National Guard organizations of the States has arisen over the proposed legislation providing for the payment of the militia by the national government.

As a result of the open break, Secretary of War Garrison has refused permission to Assistant Secretary Breckenridge, Chief of Staff Wood and Gen. Crowder to attend the convention of the National Guard Association in Chicago. These three officials intended to participate in the convention for the reason that the militia pay bill is slated to be the chief subject of discussion.
Secretary Garrison is dissatisfied with the provisions of the militia pay bill as proposed by the National Guard Association because he believes they do not embody sufficient advantages for the national government. He intimates the association officers broke faith with him and omitted several essential provisions which they promised would be included in the measure.

GARRISON'S LETTER.
The position of Secretary Garrison is explained in a letter he has addressed to Gen. Thomas J. Stewart of Pennsylvania, president of the National Guard Association.
"Early in my administration of this department," he said, "I was attended by the members of the Executive Committee and interviewed as to my attitude toward the payment of militiamen or National Guardsmen. I will recall that my mind was absolutely open on the subject; that I asked questions to elicit the necessity for the United States paying money for those who enlisted in the National Guard."
The response was that if the national government would guarantee money which could be utilized to pay certain of the expenses to which the men were put in coming into the regulations necessary to measure up to the standard set by the national government, the results would justify the expenditure and would make the policy one of wisdom. It was urged upon me at that time that only in this way could the militia be made a dependable force and one which could be counted upon for use when urgently needed.
I determined it would be unwise for me to pass on the question until there was displayed in a bill all the advantages which were to be secured by the government by this plan, which I had in mind, and upon which I had insisted. The proposed draft departs widely from what I consider necessary upon many essential matters.

"The proposed draft does not contain, in my view, sufficient inducements to the national government to make it worth while to consider the fundamental questions involved."
"I prefer to have the representatives of the militia take the matter without any participation, direct or indirect, by the department, and act as they may be advised."

GARRISON EXPLAINS OFFENDING SPEECH.
[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]
WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—Because he felt that some portions of his speech before last night's dinner of officers had been interpreted disparagingly to the enlisted men of the army, Secretary Garrison today made a statement explaining that he entertains exactly opposite views.
"After speaking of the fine personnel of the officers and the spirit displayed and the affection they had for the service," said the Secretary, "I referred to the enlisted men and indicated that I wished the officers to devote as much time and thought to cultivating the proper spirit in the men as they devoted to keeping abreast of all the various branches of their profession."
"I did not express any dissatisfaction with the men at all. I do not feel any less affectionate toward them than I have seen of the enlisted men in practically every station in the United States."

WATSONVILLE, Oct. 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Miss Ruby Brite, ruler of the Fourth California Apple Show, is a real queen. Elected by her hundreds of friends in Kern county, where her father is a Supervisor, and brought to Watsonville to preside over the morning and didn't leave until the coronation ceremonies last night, Queen Ruby graced the parade of the school children this morning in a huge American eagle float.
This is only the second day of the apple show and attendance records have already been broken for the first two days. The people of Hollister, Gilroy, and several hundred San Jose citizens came in on special trains in the morning and didn't leave until nearly midnight. Salinas will close the town tomorrow to attend the apple show.
In the procession this morning Queen Ruby was assisted in her float and upon the reviewing stand by her pages, Loraine Murphy and Janet Kane. It was a scene of splendor. Today's parade was fourteen blocks long and the elvish and military parade scheduled for tomorrow will stretch at least that length.
This year's apple show is on a much grander scale than any heretofore given. The feature exhibits are unique and exceptionally clever. It will continue until Sunday, it having been decided today to remain open next Sunday. The programme to include a sacred concert.

Governor Sees His "Progressive" Principles Slipping Into Oblivion and, Tied to the Disappearing Platform, He Finds Himself, Slashed by the Unkind Cut of Heney, Wallowing in the Dank Tarn of Disloyalty.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]
SACRAMENTO, Oct. 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] An "ominous silence," as the novelists have it, pervades the political heavens and echoes of gossip fill the State Capitol building. The Progressive politicians have a worried look, they talk in nervous, jerky sentences and huddle together in "whispered converse."
"What is Gov. Johnson going to do?" and "What is going to be done to Gov. Johnson?" are the two questions (according to the political denomination of the questioner) that fall from the lips of men who are hanging around under the shade of the "plum tree" waiting for something to drop.
Rumor has it, and Rumor is a rather reliable old dame when so many of her tongues tell the same story, that Gov. Johnson is a disgusted, disappointed and a sick man. This much every one knows: The Governor is not active. The crack of the disciplining whip that once kept the pie-eater crowd in a semblance of order is heard no more, and the "faithful" are quarreling and squabbling among themselves. Worse than that, there are mutinous whisperings abroad.

Men, who, not so very long ago, swore by Gov. Johnson no longer affirm their oaths of allegiance. The "ominous silence" has them bluffed. They don't know what to expect, but the general opinion is that Hiram W. Johnson is through with politics—or, that politics is through with him.
I was talking with a man who knows, and who knows that he knows the political conditions of the State. He stands high in the ranks of the Progressives and is one of the few who now openly avow loyalty to Gov. Johnson. This is what he said, and about all that he would say—it isn't much, except when the source is considered, and when it is backed by the evidence from other sections of the State and nation, and when it is practically the same that every other Progressive in California is saying: "The Republican party is stronger today than when Taft was nominated the last time. And if the Republicans and Progressives don't get together this State will be Democratic in spite of high water and—" that place which is said to have a monopoly on sulphur.

That, I believe, gives the cue to the "ominous silence." That explains why the lash of Gov. Johnson no longer sounds its warning above the heads numbered among the pie-counter brigade. He realizes that he is face to face with an irresistible object—that is, the amalgamation of the Republican party in California. That being the case, he is politically doomed. He can have his choice between lying down or with the sad foreknowledge of inevitable defeat may run for United States Senator or to succeed himself as Governor. And so the "ominous silence" pervades the heavens while Gov. Johnson meditates.

I said that he was held to be a disgusted, disappointed and a sick man. His plans have gone awry. His hopes, Gargantuan political hopes they were, have been blasted. He sincerely believed that he was to become a permanent national figure, especially after the Bull Moose episode, and he is hurt and disappointed to find that the "bright, young, generous Progressives" are losing their enthusiasm. The Progressive papers continue to make a pretense that the party is solid and intact because they fear to sacrifice what prestige they have by being frank. But Gov. Johnson is not deceived. He realizes that the Republican party of California and of the nation is soon to be united more firmly than ever. The harm wrought by the Democratic Congress with its tariff manipulation has taught the Progressives the folly of following strange gods, and is sending them back into the Republican ranks.

DISAPPOINTED BY FRIENDS.
Gov. Johnson is also disgusted because he has been disappointed by his own "friends." He attempted to build up a powerful political organization which he was to dominate, and toward that end put men into office whom he thought he could trust; men who would not "bite the hand that fed them." But many of them have disregarded orders, and scandal after scandal has persisted in breaking out, and while he energetically, and to a certain degree effectively, smoothed things over, still the ever-recurring instances of disloyalty have poisoned his faith.

Two years ago he admitted openly that he planned to run to succeed himself as Governor. Now, many of his best friends are trimming their sails to make the race, and James Thelan of the State Railroad Commission is being talked of by the very men whom the Governor and his remaining friends believe should be lining up for Hiram Johnson.

After the Governor had the exquisite pleasure of being a national figure as one of the chiefs in Roosevelt's folly, Johnson let it be known that he thought a Senatorial toad would be about the best suited to his style of beauty. In fact, he had a law fixed up at the last session of the Legislature which would allow him free rein in running for Senator while he was still in office.

ADVERSATIVE CONJUNCTION.
But—! Francis J. Heney, one of the most profusely anointed among the holy of California, has already come out after the coveted honor. He did so without Gov. Johnson's sanction, and it takes no memory at all to recall the time when Heney took orders like an automaton with wire attachments, and assisted Johnson in the flop from La Follette after promises had been given to support the Wisconsin Senator, just before the last national election.
Heney has a large following among the Progressives, and even he is no longer so foolish as to wantonly insult the Republicans who remained loyal to the party when an epidemic of heresy carried away many good members. Heney so modulates his rhetoric that

EAGLE PASS, Oct. 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] In parade formation and without the aid of a trumpet the main body of the federal army entered Piedras Negras shortly after 1 o'clock today and a few minutes later were in complete possession of what was left of the city after the desertion by the Carranzistas. Two hours previous the downfall of the Carranza regime was anticipated by the order received from Venustiano Carranza, a few weeks ago forbidding his followers to engage in any fight where victory was not assured.

As soon as the order became known to the rank and file the spirit of resistance previously displayed suddenly vanished and the officers were unable to keep their men in line of battle during the encounters at San Buena Ventura and Hermosillo.

The retreat from Aurs degenerated into a humiliating rout and at last when the federal army displayed the insignia of invading the stronghold of the Carranzistas Gen. Pablo Gonzalez found himself helpless to strike a single blow in defense of his cause.

Many stories of victories unachieved served to stimulate the supporters of the Carranzista cause. The Carranzistas were whipped before a single shot had been fired.

Abandoned officers used their influence with American friends to provide safe conduct to the American side and Eagle Pass was filled with Carranzistas to have formed a strong army.

FEDERALS OUTNUMBERED.

Military officers watching the course of events assert that enough men crossed the bridge this morning to have wiped the Carranzistas out of existence had they really believed the revolution was right. As it was, the Carranzistas were forced to retreat, and the Carranzistas were forced to retreat, and the Carranzistas were forced to retreat.

That the entire town was not blown up was due entirely to the influence of the United States military authorities working in harmony with the Carranzistas. Both Carranza and Jefe Calzada were told that they would be held personally responsible and while the headquarters guards asserted "Orange juice," the city was deserted.

THE REFUGEE PROBLEM.

It is too early to outline the policies of General Maas, but a committee of representatives will call tomorrow to ascertain his intentions regarding the thousands of refugees now held at the quarantine camp in Eagle Pass. The Carranzistas will attempt to recapture the city if generally admitted as the line of communication with the south has been cut off and the Carranzistas will refuse to allow munitions to pass over.

In this manner it is expected that the trouble will continue indefinitely unless the Carranzistas succeed in finding the Carranzistas army.

Despite the number of Carranzistas now on the American side everything is quiet and no trouble is expected for a day or two at least.

[BY A. P. WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PIEDRAS NEGRAS, Oct. 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Carranzistas, convinced of the futility of further resistance the entire rebel force under the command of Col. Sanchez Herrera abandoned the city at noon today, leaving the road open for the entrance of the federal army. Before taking final action Col. Herrera notified the inhabitants to leave before dark as operations were contemplated that might place in jeopardy the lives of non-combatants.

Government has given occasion for grave fears on the part of the American military authorities regarding the future of the city, and the general opinion prevails that the big shops and some of the private houses owned by known federal sympathizers will be sacrificed in spite of the protests of the Washington authorities.

Capt. Riegler of the Fourteenth Cavalry received today the order of the Carranzistas to make a clean sweep of the city and that mines have been secretly planted with a view of setting them off as the federal army enters the town.

Explanation of the slow movement of the federal army is made in the report received this morning that advance guards were sent ahead to feel out the way and look for concealed dynamite.

An American electrician recently arrived from Central America, is said to have engineered the placing of dynamite where it would do the most good," according to the Carranzistas, and the army from Mexico City started to have delayed its advance on this account.

Acting on the advice of the military authorities the local county officials have raised the quarantine, permitting the multitude of refugees to seek safety on American soil. Judge Bonnet, a federal judge of the consular court of Maverick county, stated this morning that the seemingly unjust quarantine had been imposed by the county officials for the purpose of forcing the Carranzistas to leave the city.

The Carranzistas, however, are keeping soon would set up the slender resources of the county. The Washington authorities having ordered that the Carranzistas be given humane treatment, the gates were opened and at least 5000 passed over the international bridge at Eagle Pass this morning. Several thousand more are expected before the end of the day.

As there are no longer any soldiers to guard the interests of the city the Carranzistas have organized a home guard and are patrolling the streets until one side or other appears on the scene with sufficient force to guarantee order. In this work the Carranzistas are being assisted by American business men on this side of the river.

All American families went across in anticipation of the last act of the drama. Some of the Carranzistas were loath to leave despite the positive orders received from the Carranzistas that something might happen.

All telephone, electric light and telegraph wires were cut at 1 o'clock this afternoon and it is reported upon good authority that not 100 men remained to welcome the incoming army. So the Carranzistas showed that the Carranzistas were whipped before a single shot had been fired.

Abandoned officers used their influence with American friends to provide safe conduct to the American side and Eagle Pass was filled with Carranzistas to have formed a strong army.

Several thousand more are expected before the end of the day.

As there are no longer any soldiers to guard the interests of the city the Carranzistas have organized a home guard and are patrolling the streets until one side or other appears on the scene with sufficient force to guarantee order. In this work the Carranzistas are being assisted by American business men on this side of the river.

All telephone, electric light and telegraph wires were cut at 1 o'clock this afternoon and it is reported upon good authority that not 100 men remained to welcome the incoming army. So the Carranzistas showed that the Carranzistas were whipped before a single shot had been fired.

Abandoned officers used their influence with American friends to provide safe conduct to the American side and Eagle Pass was filled with Carranzistas to have formed a strong army.

FEDERALS OUTNUMBERED.

Military officers watching the course of events assert that enough men crossed the bridge this morning to have wiped the Carranzistas out of existence had they really believed the revolution was right. As it was, the Carranzistas were forced to retreat, and the Carranzistas were forced to retreat, and the Carranzistas were forced to retreat.

That the entire town was not blown up was due entirely to the influence of the United States military authorities working in harmony with the Carranzistas. Both Carranza and Jefe Calzada were told that they would be held personally responsible and while the headquarters guards asserted "Orange juice," the city was deserted.

THE REFUGEE PROBLEM.

It is too early to outline the policies of General Maas, but a committee of representatives will call tomorrow to ascertain his intentions regarding the thousands of refugees now held at the quarantine camp in Eagle Pass. The Carranzistas will attempt to recapture the city if generally admitted as the line of communication with the south has been cut off and the Carranzistas will refuse to allow munitions to pass over.

In this manner it is expected that the trouble will continue indefinitely unless the Carranzistas succeed in finding the Carranzistas army.

Despite the number of Carranzistas now on the American side everything is quiet and no trouble is expected for a day or two at least.

CITY IS DESERTED.

ROADS MINED WITH DYNAMITE.

[BY A. P. WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PIEDRAS NEGRAS, Oct. 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Carranzistas, convinced of the futility of further resistance the entire rebel force under the command of Col. Sanchez Herrera abandoned the city at noon today, leaving the road open for the entrance of the federal army. Before taking final action Col. Herrera notified the inhabitants to leave before dark as operations were contemplated that might place in jeopardy the lives of non-combatants.

Government has given occasion for grave fears on the part of the American military authorities regarding the future of the city, and the general opinion prevails that the big shops and some of the private houses owned by known federal sympathizers will be

point to point, to take the responsibility of recommending that Americans in any particular locality be returned or advised to return, or even to remain if now there, and having transmitted the President's advice feels that each American in Mexico must act as his own judge. Americans, who knowing the President's advice, remain in Mexico, and those who feel compelled to return there should know that the President stated in his message:

"We should let everyone who assumes to exercise authority in any part of Mexico know in the most unequivocal way that we shall vigilantly watch the fortunes of those Americans who cannot get away and hold those responsible for their sufferings and other acts of defiance."

NEW TRIBE

IS DISCOVERED.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Oct. 7.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Politics caused the Home Industry League of California to wobble this morning when the Democratic Party, who are seeking to boost Mike Tarpey for Governor, captured the works of the Banquet Committee.

The question before the committee was whether the gratitude of one industry in the State should be expressed in a banquet to all the men who had not been found guilty of treason. The Ohio wine bill or by a banquet to Tarpey, as Democratic candidate for Governor, was to be attended by "600 prominent Democrats from all over the State."

Now here's the brilliant solution, arrived at after much controversy and protest of non-partisanship.

"All the gentlemen who assisted in Washington in defeating the fake wine bill are to join in a banquet to Tarpey."

After passing this in the form of a resolution, said to be in the interest of harmony, the committee wobbled just once more by resolving that the Governor of the State and the Mayors of Oakland and San Francisco should be invited to speak at said banquet.

"To prove that it was entirely non-partisanship."

Now, the question is—call it a pun, if you like: Find the Democratic Home Industry League of California, who are seeking to boost Mike Tarpey for Governor, captured the works of the Banquet Committee.

OPPORTUNITY

The greatest epoch in the last thousand years of the world's history is about to be consummated—the completion of the Panama Canal.

Already the entire shipping industry has felt the stimulating effect of the digging of the Canal, and its early completion.

The maritime history of the world shows no record of shipbuilding activity, in preparation for any event equal to the energetic construction of vessels today for trade at Los Angeles and other Pacific Coast ports, upon the opening of the Panama Canal.

You paid for the Canal. Here is your opportunity to get your profit.

AWAKENING OF THE SOUTH COAST PANAMA NAVIGATION & COMMERCIAL CO.'S STEAMSHIPS OPEN UP RICH COUNTRY

A vast empire of untold riches, lying at our very gates, awaits only the quickening impulse of capital and labor to pour fortunes into the laps of the favored ones who have the foresight to grasp the opportunity here immediately presented.

No section of the world is richer in natural resources, and presents such unlimited opportunities for the quick accumulation of fortunes as does the West Coast of Mexico and Central America.

Harriman started the flood of immigration into this rich section by building the West Coast Railroad; but the constant cry of the farmers, stock growers and miners of the West Coast of Mexico and Central America has been for regular, dependable and quick passenger and freight steamship service between their ports and Los Angeles.

Panama Navigation and Commercial Co.'s Steamships will supply this service.

ENORMOUS PROFITS CARRYING FREIGHT AND PASSENGERS

It would be next to impossible to attempt to tell you of the enormous profit which the Steamships of this Company will earn; but to give you something of an idea of the present and future possibilities, we will indicate only two or three sources of freight and passengers.

At Magdalena Bay are some of the most extensive deposits of Magnesium in the world, and a company is about to erect a refining works at San Pedro. They offer us a minimum of 2000 tons per month, and will be ready to begin shipping as soon as we are ready to handle it.

There are, at present, thousands of tons of grain on the Yaqui River awaiting the arrival of our boats, and we are assured of at least 1500 tons of freight, permanently, per month from that vicinity.

A few miles below, at the port of Topolobampo is a colony of Americans who have shipped as high as 1500 cars of tomatoes in a single season. These shipments will be increased many times as soon as our boats guarantee them regular service. This is a very profitable class of freight. At this point is also located a very large sugar mill whose export of sugar and alcohol runs into thousands of tons annually.

A little further south, at the Port of Altata, the same conditions obtain, both as to sugar and vegetables, there being two large sugar mills shipping through this port.

Further south, along the Coast, are enormous cattle ranches and banana plantations which have not been able to get their product to the markets of this country.

Our steamers will make direct connection at Manzanillo with the railroad to Guadalajara and Mexico City. These are the two largest and finest cities in the Republic of Mexico, composed largely of people of wealth, who travel extensively. These cities have a combined population of from 700,000 to 800,000 inhabitants.

Farther south we will connect with the Tehuantepec Railroad at Salina Cruz; at San Jose de Guatemala with the railroad to Guatemala City and at Corinto with the railroad there, which taps a country of a million population.

Negotiations are being carried on at the present time with the Salt Lake Railroad to enter into traffic arrangement with them whereby they will establish joint freight and passenger offices with our Company in Mexico City, Guadalajara and other large points.

This is sufficient to show that our steamers will be loaded to capacity on every trip, without mentioning the enormous business incident to the opening of the San Francisco and San Diego Expositions.

FREE A TRIP TO PANAMA

MAKE THIS TRIP AS OUR GUEST
To each of the first few purchasers of two thousand shares of treasury stock will be given this magnificent trip, ABSOLUTELY FREE. Good any time within one year, on our steamers touching at every port between Los Angeles and the Canal. Take your family with you and make money while you travel.

This free offer limited, and may be withdrawn at any time. YOU MUST ACT AT ONCE TO AVAIL YOURSELF OF THIS OPPORTUNITY!

Enormous Profits in Steamship Line

Fleet of Six Steamers to Open Up Vast Riches of the South Coast—Millions of Dollars Earned Yearly by the Steamship Companies.

Safest investment known. Steamships and cargoes fully insured against loss. Never before in the history of Los Angeles has the person of moderate means had such a chance to buy shares in a steamship company at the ground floor price.

WHY? Because steamship shares have been recognized the world over by the millionaires as the safest and most profitable place to invest their own dollars.

Does This Signify Anything to You?

The Panama Navigation and Commercial Co. is the people's company and you, individually, can buy but 10,000 shares, thus keeping it always the people's company.

You won't have to wait a year for profits.

Dividends will begin to accrue immediately our first steamer is placed on the run.

FORTUNES IN LAND AND COLONIZATION

One of the most profitable adjuncts to transportation lines, both rail and water, is their land and colonization department. It will be the policy of the PANAMA NAVIGATION & COMMERCIAL COMPANY to pay strict attention to this lucrative branch of the business.

Nowhere in the world are there finer bodies of land lying out of doors, in an undeveloped state, requiring only the magic hand of the husbandman to return millions of dollars of profit.

With the opening of the Panama Canal hundreds of thousands of the better class of peasants from Southern Europe will swarm through the Canal to populate and develop this virgin country. Already the Hamburg-American Steamship Company has sold 80,000 tickets to Europeans who will shortly become citizens of this favored section. Our Company has laid its plans to secure its share of this business.

The Company is about to close a deal on one single tract of 110,000 acres of as rich land as can be found in the world. This land is now, in large part, growing coconuts, alfalfa, beans, sugar cane, corn, cotton, etc., and will be bought at a very low price and immediately colonized.

The profits to be realized from the Land and Colonization Department of the Company are enormous, and should run into the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

CAPITAL

The Company, with its authorized capital of $1,000,000.00, has ample capital to purchase and operate a fleet of six splendid steamships, and to carry on, on an extensive scale, its land and colonization projects.

Of its capital stock of one million shares, 100,000 shares have already been subscribed, 900,000 shares remaining in the treasury.

PROFITS

The profits on these shares will begin immediately. Dividends will begin to accumulate from the minute our first steamer is placed on the run.

On the basis of freight and passengers now offered, each steamer will earn $3,000.00 per month or $36,000.00 net profit per year. With a full fleet of six steamers operating, net earnings will total $216,000.00 per annum. This earning, alone, insures annual dividends in excess of 20 per cent on the total capitalization of the Company. Add to this the enormous earnings from our land and colonization department, and you have the best, safest and most profitable investment ever offered in Los Angeles.

Remember, the earnings will begin immediately and multiply with each additional steamship placed in commission.

OPERATIONS BEGIN IMMEDIATELY

The company will begin operations with chartered vessels, and expects to place the first boat on the run within a few days, just as soon as negotiations, now being carried on, can be completed. This will be immediately followed by the addition of a second ship, and four more will be placed in commission shortly after the opening of the Canal, from the Port of Los Angeles down the West Coast of Mexico and Central America, through the Canal and up the East Coast to New Orleans, carrying both freight and passengers.

Our vessels will have a capacity of about fifteen hundred tons of freight each and first-class accommodations for from seventy-five to one hundred passengers, and will carry one hundred or more second-class and steerage passengers.

They will make every port on the West Coast from Los Angeles to the Canal, the size of the vessels enabling them to make the small ports which the larger vessels cannot enter. On the East Coast only one port will be made between Panama and New Orleans, that of Progreso, Yucatan.

It is the intention, then, to order the construction of a fleet of boats especially adapted to this trade. These boats will be models of perfection, magnificently appointed and embodying all the latest improvements in marine building. They will be equipped with either Diesel engines or oil burners, capable of making fifteen knots or more per hour. Special attention will be given to the arrangements for accommodating high-class passenger travel.

WELL KNOWN, SUCCESSFUL MEN AT THE HEAD OF THE COMPANY

The President and General Manager, Mr. Geo. W. Grayson, a successful steamship man, has been for 20 years past identified with the steamship business throughout the world. His last important berth was with the China Mutual Steam Navigation Co., in a managerial capacity.

Mr. Grayson is a valuable asset to the Company, being thoroughly familiar with the freight and passenger carrying business. He begins the work of organization along the latest successful lines.

The Vice-President, Mr. Alex. Graydon, a well known and successful business man, has for many years been operating along the South Coast, and is entirely conversant with the situation there from every angle.

Mr. Graydon has at the present time extensive fibre and other interests along the Coast, and his personal knowledge of that section will prove of great benefit to the Company.

The Treasurer, Mr. Terrell B. Ross, is a successful business man who, for the past 20 years has been engaged in the wholesale grocery business as President and General Manager of a large concern. He is at present heavily interested in Mexico.

SHADOW OF A SECOND MAN LIFTED OUT OF GAY CASE.

Confession of Slayer of Two Women Fully Verified and the Prisoner Rushed to Los Angeles Before Lawyer and Investigators Can Reach Him.

THE SHADOW of a second man as the inspiring genius of the murder of Mrs. Rebecca P. Gay by Burr Harris was lifted last night after an exhaustive investigation conducted by Deputy District Attorney Blair which demonstrated that the full confession made by Harris to Burl Armstrong of the Times in San Diego early yesterday morning was truthful in every particular.

The negro murderer was spirited away from San Diego early yesterday morning and brought to the city in an automobile. He was taken to his old home, where he met a squad of detectives under the direction of Deputy District Attorney Blair. Later he was taken to the Boyle Heights Police Station, where he elaborated upon his confession and was locked in the jail there. The woman-killer's story was completed and the important points verified last night. Today a charge of murder in the first degree will be filed against Harris.

After the confession was made to a Times reporter, while the Los Angeles detectives were asleep early yesterday morning, a scare was thrown into the San Diego and local offices when it was learned that two investigators and an attorney were already laying the foundation for a defense for Harris.

It is understood that Harris had a perfect alibi in the case of the murder of Mrs. Melvina Roberts in 1912. He relied upon the fact that he was in the city of San Diego at the time of the murder, and that he was in the city of San Diego at the time of the murder.

Dramatic Revelations of Dark Hours.

Figures and scenes in the Gay tragedy and confession. The central picture shows the detectives digging up the bloody clothes of Burr Harris, the slayer, last night, in a vacant lot near his home, where he buried them in rubbish after the murder. Harris is seen holding a lantern. He led the officers to the spot and told them where to dig. Above is a portrait of Mrs. Rebecca P. Gay, the victim, and below Harris as he looked last night. The sketch is of the Harris house, No. 2530 McPherson street.

motives when he sent poisoned candy to the Pierce children. Harris undoubtedly is afflicted with psychic epilepsy or something kindred to it. His appetite for blood, which apparently developed as he grew into manhood and waxed stronger as the years rolled on, was satisfied only by killing.

AT "MAMMY'S" CABIN IN THE HALF-LIGHT.

Weird Scene as Evidence Is Dug Up on Garbage Dump.

Slayer, Unshackled and Without Handcuffs, Leads Officers to Spot Where He Buried His Blood-Stained Garments After Killing Mrs. Gay, and Tells All. Poor Old Mother's Distress.

BURR HARRIS went out last night to say good-by forever to the old cabin where he and his "mammy" lived, and out behind, in the old city dump, dug from its grave the roll of bloody clothing that he had cast off because he thought it too stained ever to wear again.

When the detective's car, carrying Burr Harris and Detectives Erven and Hickok, left San Diego yesterday, instructions were given to take the slayer directly to his home, where he could point out the ground that hid his clothes. It was the last step necessary for an absolute support of his confession.

Around it "Mammy"—Mrs. Clara Harris—the murderer's mother, was moving restlessly. Time and again she went out to the little chicken yard, the place where the companion piece of pipe to the one that furnished the killer's weapon, lay. She smoothed the backs of her old rooster, Ned, and stared at the group of men, newspaper and police, that was assembling. As the hour approached when she must prepare the evening meal for the working men, she fed, she grew more restless and could not hold herself to stay by the kitchen stove until the victuals were ready. She left them and stood at the window, watching the motors drive up, sighing in her stupid sorrow. It was a tragic night for "Mammy." All she could do was sigh. She knew that the end of her boy was probably even now certain—and that and hanging.

It seemed to be preying upon her, that possibility of hanging, for as the time passed and the motors came gasping up, she tripped upon a piece of rope in her chicken yard. She picked it up and threw it viciously. And it was about the size of a hangman's hemp.

Much time passed, the lights on the motors were glowing, mammy was still pacing back and forth from cabin to chicken pen, too sick at heart to feed her "boarders," who came hungrily to claim the evening meal. The motor from San Diego was expected at 5 o'clock. Three hours was paced off with dreadful surmises, until 8 arrived, with Deputy District Attorney Blair, several detectives and a squad of reporters waiting impatiently.

The Genuine Pianola Action Is Incorporated Only in the Following:

THE DAY'S WORK.

A number of persons, including Col. Henry Waterson, seem to regret what they call the sacrifice of Fuller for the displacement of Tammany. A man ought to be glad to die politically for a cause like that.

THE CHURCHES.

The most every intelligent student of the Philippines says that its inhabitants are still a dependent people. How could they be otherwise when they never saw a baseball game in their lives until 1907?

A HARMLESS COUNTERFEIT.

A man in San Francisco posed as the brother of an English duke and he is to be deported as an undesirable alien. They could not have treated him worse if he had been the duke himself, but perhaps he will think himself lucky to escape unharmed.

YELLOW STUFF.

The Thaw magazine says that the Thaw tragedy has turned into a melodrama and that Sophocles or Euripides would have made a great tragedy out of this young murderer's career and his troubles, which seem to be nine-tenths of his career. Why not leave it to Paul Armstrong?

BREAKERS AHEAD.

They say that Wilson is becoming interested in the vagaries of Bryan. We imagined he could make trouble enough of his own without borrowing it. People don't mind hearing Bryan talk, but the President sometimes has no better sense than to act.

WELCOME RELIEF.

The German government managed to secure the release of an American citizen who was held a prisoner at Guaymas. We are glad that some country can help citizens of the United States who find themselves distressed in Mexico. It is certain that our own country can do nothing in cases of that kind.

MAKING UP.

Three weeks from now we can all begin to speak to our neighbors again. By that time they will be over their chagrin and bitterness about having picked the loser of the world's series and may be willing to confess in all humility that they do not know the game. At present their arrogance is unbearable.

GRAND-STAND PLAY.

A man escaped from the chain gang of Alameda county when he still had thirty days of his sentence to serve. That was eighteen months ago. Last week he returned married and rich. He had been to Alaska and had found the big thing in money and the right woman to spend it. He was willing to surrender a little of it on a fine, but it could not be done legally and so he is in jail, having a sort of prison de luxe. We don't know whether he enjoys the notoriety or merely looks good sense. Making a check for $30 would have been the logical way of meeting the emergency.

THE HAPPY CITY.

The trouble with Los Angeles folks is that we have the most beautiful city in the world and don't know it. We never see it. Up at San Francisco 100,000 people see their town every day as they cross the bay. In New York City perhaps millions see that metropolis as they cross North River, but here everybody seems to be downtown all of the time and few of us move far enough away to get a perspective. Los Angeles is something to behold if the people ever gave it a chance to swim into sight.

DALLIES.

The Astors called the dahlia the anemone. It was a wild flower in Mexico and was single. Long ago someone took specimens to Spain and they were cultivated in the botanic gardens at Madrid as early as 1789. The first double flowers were produced in the botanic gardens at Belgium in 1814. There are two dahlia farms in Southern California, one being in Hollywood and one in Eagle Rock Valley, and seven hundred distinct varieties of the beautiful blossom are now produced.

STUDY SPANISH.

With the restoration of peace and order in Mexico, now believed to be rapidly approaching, and the opening of the Panama Canal, will come an industrial and commercial revival in Central and South America of which our merchants and manufacturers should make ready to avail themselves, and the best equipment, in fact an absolutely necessary equipment for either a resident or a traveling salesman, will be an ability to speak and write the Spanish language. Indeed a study of Spanish should be made a part of the curriculum in all our schools.

Even without the aid of the Panama Canal the growth of our trade with South America the last few years has been phenomenal. In machinery we exported to Latin America $27,358,293 worth in 1913 as against $4,978,376 worth in 1905. Of typewriters we sent there $74,537 worth in 1902 and over $1,000,000 worth in 1912. We sent out $280,000 worth of sewing machines in 1905 and $5,500,000 worth in 1912; of electrical apparatus, $2,500,000 worth in 1905 and $2,750,000 worth in 1912; of automobiles, $15,353 in 1902 and over $2,000,000 in 1912.

The trade of the country south of us is sure by right of proximity. We must not permit it to escape altogether.

CRIME AND PUNISHMENT.

The first duty of the government is to afford protection to its citizens; and when such criminals are discovered as Harry Spencer of Chicago, who has confessed to killing fourteen people for robbery and because—to use his words—he "sort of liked it," and Burr Harris, the negro brute who, for a reason not even known to himself, beat to death a woman in this city, we recognize that our government, despite all its efforts, does not assure that protection. It is not enough that such criminals shall be run over and punished. Punishment is originated as a mode of retaliation, and it is now modified into an ineffectual deterrent. The hanging of all the murderers since Cain could not make restitution to the friends and family of one victim. It is the prevention of crime that is essential to security, therefore we must wish to alter the system that perverts justice into a tragic game of "hide-and-go-seek" between the law and the criminal.

There are so many tangles and such a mesh of complications in the study of criminology, so many crimes, so few effective remedies, and so little known in solution of that most serious of problems, that we may as well acknowledge ourselves ignorant and encourage a scientific and comprehensive study that will develop an effective substitute for our present mode of protection and punishment.

It has been said that the value of punishment depends not on its severity, but on the surety with which it will be inflicted. But in recent years the courts have been compelled to realize that the factor of insanity must be reckoned with in the judgment and disposition of criminals. Psychologists have torn a rent in the heavy curtains that veil the workings of the mind and have shown that many people are the puppets of impulses over which they have no control. We are therefore, perhaps reluctantly, forced to admit that there is a differentiation between "voluntary" and "involuntary" criminals. Whereas punishment might act as a deterrent on the former, it is plain that even the certain vengeance of death would not restrain a man from an act over which he exercised no volition.

The condition that we face cannot be endured indefinitely, and some system must be formulated that will provide for a consideration of the motives behind the crimes, so that a scientific and humane disposition may be made of those who violate the sanctity of life and disregard the laws.

If we go to the fountain head of humanity—and to that fountain head the State must ultimately go and purify if moral and physical deterioration is to be averted—we find that most of us are more or less the victims of our ancestors, plus the influence of environment. Eugenics offers a solution, but thirty generations, with all the parents of the world in accord, would scarcely realize the hope of that sane and honorable doctrine. While recognizing the benefits of effort directed by eugenics, nevertheless, we must have some more immediate relief and not be willing to complacently nurse an ideal, although a good one, for the next thousand years.

Our needs demand that the greatest intellects of the age give their attention to the study of penology. Our officers are practically helpless until a crime is committed and then the very best of us are done in to make sure that the creature, if captured, commits no more. Such procedure is ineffectual; it is a negative method of prevention, whereas to fold the citizens of this nation in the security to which the innocent and the law-abiding are entitled it is necessary that a positive method be instituted that will prevent, instead of punish, crime.

A "LIVING WAGE."

A minimum wage should, it is claimed by its advocates, be based upon the cost of living, and as stated by Mr. James Boyle, both English and American economists agree that there is a great difference in standards of living, and a great difficulty in defining them; and this difficulty is particularly so where work-people of different standards of living come into competition with one another in similar industries.

Benjamin Seebohm Rowntree, the English radical reformer, in a recent article in the Contemporary Review, demonstrates that $5.63 a week is the absolute minimum in England on which a family of two adults and three children, paying $1.30 a week for rent, can be maintained in a state of physical efficiency; and yet, he declares, this is an unattainable ideal to the vast majority of those unskilled workers who have three children dependent upon them. Mr. Rowntree estimates that in England there are nearly 1,000,000 men working for less than $4.50 per week and over 1,500,000 working for less than $4.00 to $4.

Father Ryan, the famous Catholic advocate of a legal minimum wage, says in his book that in a large American city $11.54 a week is not a living wage, and he estimates that in all the industrial occupations in the country there are probably 4,000,000 men who have a less income than that. John Mitchell, the labor leader, puts the minimum at $11.54 per week in cities of less than 100,000 population. Prof. Albion W. Small says $10.23. The New York Commission and the New York Council on Charities and Corrections placed the minimum at $12.53. Robert Cort Chapin, in his "Standard of Living among Workmen's Families," gives $13.46 as the minimum in a town or small city and $15.38 in the largest cities. He claims that more than half of the adult male workers receive less than $12.46 per week.

Dr. Scott Nearing of the University of Pennsylvania, in his work "Wages in the United States," says that half of the adult males of the United States, after making deductions for unemployment, are earning less than $8.41 per week, three-quarters are earning less than $11.53 per week, nine-tenths are receiving less than $15.40 per week, and less than 10 per cent receive more than that figure.

Taking the average wages paid in the two countries, the American worker earns $9.61 where the Englishman earns $5.40, and the Englishman earns $5.63 where the American earns $11.54. The expenditures are based upon the cost of maintaining a family of two adults and three children; the income is based upon the earnings of a single man. The American earning the minimum wage of $9.61 per week can support himself, but not a family which would cost him $11.54 per week, while the Englishman earning $5.40 per week can almost support a family that costs him $5.63 per week.

It is clear that if, by means of the new tariff, the standard of wages of the American worker is lowered, his standard of living must be lowered accordingly.

HIGH-BROWED FINANCE.

The union-laborites of Phoenix, Ariz., in their enthusiasm for the closed shop and the sacred right of the workers to run the business and dictate the actions of their employers, have adopted a plan of operations that will make Big Business and Loathsome Capitalism look like 30 cents.

The union-laborites have organized a Rapid Transit Company to run automobile buses on schedule time along the streets of Phoenix. The company is to have 150,000 shares of preferred stock and 50,000 shares of common stock. Only the holders of common stock can participate in the election of officers and management of the corporation.

Under the corporation laws of Arizona permission to sell stock must be obtained from the Corporation Commissioner. Application was made in due form to the commission to sell 19,885 shares of preferred stock and fifteen shares of common stock.

The five projectors of this worthy enterprise proposed to invest their entire private fortunes, aggregating $75, in the purchase of fifteen shares of common stock. They intended to sell no more common stock to anybody. They would, however, sell 19,885 shares of the preferred stock at $5 per share. The calculation was that enough wandering idlers would be found among tourists and local idiots to buy sufficient preferred stock to purchase on a small cash payment two or three autos. The revenues received from passengers would be devoted, after paying for gasoline and the wages of chauffeurs and helpers, to the salaries of the five gentlemen who would put up the $75 and who would, as common stockholders, elect themselves as president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer and general manager of the corporation.

Any surplus remaining after these necessary disbursements are made would be devoted to meeting deferred payments on autos and the purchase of more autos. "Where," it was asked, "will the preferred stockholders come in?" "Well, they won't exactly come in. They will stay out." The scheme was as grand a plan of drawing a tumbler to a shoestring as ever Andrew Carnegie or the late John P. Morgan devised. It is said to relate that it was a little too raw for even the castron stomachs of the Arizona Corporation Commission. They said in their brutal indifference to the interests of union labor that to allow the investors of $75 to control the money of the investors of $99,225 was a scheme of finance too high-browed to receive their approval.

"And the investors of $75 in the Phoenix Rapid Transit Company were at last accounts paddling around in the soup."

OUR ENRAGED WILSON.

The Princeton schoolmaster, flushed with triumph at the passage of his tariff bill, has—as the gifted slang-elfer now en route to South America would say—"bitten off more than he can chew." He has undertaken a task that only the Almighty could perform. He has attempted to make Senators Hitchcock of Nebraska and Reed of Missouri sit quiet in their curule chairs and hold their tongues.

The Presidential programme is to stifle further debate on the currency bill. The announcement made from the White House is that "the President will feel justified in using every legitimate means to forward the progress of the currency bill toward the statute books before the end of the present session."

One of the "means" to be used is to exile from all approaches to the pie counter any Democratic Senator who dares to unlimber his tongue against the President's currency bill. The Wilson person says, "I am Sir Oracle, and when I open my lips, let no dog bark." He says to the Virginia country-editor Congressman, whose shadow is a "fanciful glass," and Glass "wails" them. He huris vituperative adjectives at the Nebraska Senator. He accuses him of the unpardonable sin of Aldrichism and bids him behold Wilson in the act of gnashing his teeth at the unseemly recalcitrance of his subject.

Wilson will not stand this conduct of Hitchcock and Reed. He absolutely will not stand it. Shall a couple of far western scrub Senators successfully defy the Wilson commands and defeat the Wilson programme? It is not to be thought of. Woodrow will order the Democratic caucus to command the Banking Committee to cease discussing the Glass bill and forthwith report it. He will order the caucus to discharge the Banking Committee from further consideration of the bill, and if nothing else will do he will order the Banking Committee packed with additional members, who will do as the President directs and do it p.d.q.

WHEN SOCIALISM WILL SUCCEED.

When 61 per cent. of the voters in forty-eight States become propertyless wage-earners with no hope and no desire of becoming anything else then Socialism will come into its own, and its own, as defined in the Socialist dictionary, means everything that has been accumulated by everybody else.

The advent of that halcyon hour is urged by the leading writers and orators of the syndicalist cult. Their slogan is: "Beware of thrift, it is the workingman's enemy!" Hyndman, one of the ablest of the English Socialists, said: "To put money in the savings banks is to accumulate orders on other people's labor and is no benefit to those who save." Bax, a disciple and follower of Marx, said: "The Socialists are radically at variance with thrift." A man who works at his trade more than his necessity compels him, or who accumulates more than he can enjoy, is not a hero, but a fool from the Socialist's point of view. One of the most widely-read of Socialist publications is Hobson's "Fallacy of Saving."

These elementary doctrines of Socialism will be rejected, and indeed are being rejected by the common sense of the workers of the land. Los Angeles Socialists listen to the rantings of soap-box orators, but they do not believe in the wisdom, the fairness or the advantage to themselves of an application of the doctrines that they advocate.

The leaders of Socialism, the advocates of strikes and boycotts, and assaults upon non-union workmen, and the establishment of a dynasty of dynamic security laugh and sneer at the teachings of Marx, Darrow, the Gompers and are Socialists for revenue only. They are not working to establish a fatherhood-of-God-and-brotherhood-of-man cult. They are after contributions from servant girls and laundresses and seamstresses and mechanics and day laborers. Harriman had not, at last accounts, sold his orange grove and cashed his mortgages and turned the proceeds over to the L.W.W. He is a Socialist for office only and he does not agree with Bax and other dreamers. Every dollar that these froth-mouthed labor leaders extort from their victims goes deep into the pockets of the diamonded blatherite mendicants and as it goes it sings "farewell, vain world, I'm going home."

Honest Socialists are misguided dreamers who have studied its doctrines "just enough to lose their common sense and not enough to get it back again." Thrift is the enemy of Socialism. Thrift and industry will enable the intelligent hand laborer to become a foreman, and the foreman to become a contractor, and the contractor to become a capitalist.

The change in government, in society and in civilization which Socialism proposes will never be brought about by the clear-headed, ambitious, common-sense workers of America.

UNCLE WALT.

The Post Philosopher.

Is the furnace oil and ready for its task? Not much longer in soft breezes may we bask, for the winter soon is due, with its stinging storm and stiff—that's the reason, gentle reader, why I ask. Have you barked the house the way it ought to be? Have you got a pile of kindling laid ready for the stove and grate? Oh, you ought to do it now, before the cold wind whips you and your family into a frenzy. For old winter never hits me unaware; I am ready when he rises around and tears, with my brat and my book, in the cozy log-cabin, with my feet upon a half a dozen chairs. Ah, the careless man is always in the hole, when the blizzards and the tempests start to roll, he is raging here and there, in his fury and despair, begging dealers for a basketful of coal. And the dealers view his coming with a frown, and they will him with a glance and turn him down, for their phones are bringing in, with a clangor and a din, such appeals from every corner of the town. How I wish you'd have some sense, you careless ones! How I wish you'd look ahead a day or two, and be ready for the storm with a house that's good and warm, and a ladder full of tempting things to cheer!

Flaming Appendage Curved Like a Turkish Scimitar—Its Period More Than 2000 Years—Described by Seneca 146 Years Before Christ—Will Next Be Seen at the End of the Twenty-first Century.

BY WILLIAM H. KNIGHT.

In an editorial of October 6, "The Great Telescope," The Times quoted from the eloquent address of Col. Baker on the completion of the Atlantic cable, in which he referred to the great comet of 1858, then shining in the autumn skies. The orator supposed that it was the historic comet which appeared during the reign of Charles V., three centuries previous, and was the precursor of that monarch's death.

But subsequent calculations showed that Donati's comet, so named in honor of its Italian discoverer, has a period of more than 2000 years, so that its previous visit to the neighborhood of the sun would antedate the Christian era. Indeed it is believed to be identical with a great comet described by Seneca 146 years before Christ.

Donati's comet was one of the most magnificent which appeared during the nineteenth century. Three others perhaps vie with it in splendor—the six-tailed comet of 1811, that of 1843 which grazed the sun's corona and sent a streamer 100,000,000 miles in length, and the great comet which shone in the northwestern sky in September 1852. But Donati's will be remembered by many persons now living as one of the finest celestial objects they ever witnessed.

In October, 1852, it came with more than planetary velocity towards the sun, and while sweeping round its perihelion curve between the orbits of Venus and Mercury it was moving at the rate of 30 miles per second, and threw out a tail 45,000,000 miles in length. At one time the bright star Arcturus shone through this shimmering tail with undimmed splendor.

That spectacular appendage, following the comet as it approached the sun, but preceding it as it receded again into distant space, consisted, according to recent accepted theories, of luminous particles expelled from the fiercely agitated gases in the comet's head and driven off by the impact of the sun's rays. The tail was gracefully curved like a scimitar brandished by a celestial giant, dus, it was supposed, the rapid sweep of the comet round the perihelion curve—a great contrast to its sluggish motion of less than one-fourth of a mile per second while traversing its aphelion curve eleven hundred years ago at a distance of fifteen thousand million miles from the sun.

The generations living towards the end of the thirty-ninth century will anticipate with eager interest the return of this wonderful stranger. Its motions, behavior, composition and structure will be studied with the marvelous agencies and instruments of that bright age of achievement, and by astronomers and physicists of transcendent genius, who will con the meager data vouchsafed by the records of 1852, and construct a picture of the comet's structure, deductions and conclusions to be handed down to their successors of the sixtieth century, even as Seneca preserved and recorded his notes of the great comet and thousand years ago, and the records of its value of a phenomenon then uncomprehended, was thus snatched from unremembered oblivion.

Is this the object referred to by St. John in Revelations? "There appeared another wonder in the heavens; and behold a great dragon, and his tail, and his tail drew the third part of the stars of heaven."

ALFALFA IN THE MIDDLE NORTHWEST.

[From "Hansen, America's First Plant Explorer," by William P. Kirkwood, in the American Review of Reviews for October.] The Middle Northwestern States have become tremendously interested in the alfalfa problem. They see in this wonderful forage the basis of more stable and profitable farming. But they have had trouble to find just the hardy kinds of the plant needed to meet rigorous climatic conditions. A campaign now well under way in South Dakota—to grow alfalfa widely and expediently to reclaim the high-and-dry lands of the State, with alfalfa obtained from Siberia and Russia—is, therefore, of the utmost significance to western agriculture. It is certainly one of the most significant movements in agriculture today.

The great importance of the movement lies in the tremendous value of alfalfa as forage for practically every kind of live stock. Alfalfa grows luxuriantly, giving abundant yields, it is rich in protein, it is extremely palatable, it gathers nitrogen abundantly, it renovates the soil and provides better conditions for succeeding crops and it is long-lived. It has been the chief support of great peoples in the region between the Indian Ocean and the Mediterranean, famous for its herds since long before the Christian era. By helping to restore the live-stock industry of the western uplands it will directly enhance the wealth of the West. But live stock means improved soil conditions, and these spell better crops of different varieties. Consequently alfalfa not only means more stock-raising, but more crop-raising and greater general prosperity wherever it can be grown. It has been proved that the Russian and Siberian alfalfas can be grown on the high-and-dry uplands. Hence the effort to extend the alfalfa areas over these regions, if successful, means immensely increased prosperity. It is little wonder the people of the Middle Northwest are interested.

One-third Beats Two-thirds.

[Chicago Record-Herald:] San Francisco voted nearly four to one in favor of the bond issue of $5,000,000 for the extension of its municipal street railway system, the vote standing 51,649 to 13,760. But the total vote was less than half the registration which exceeded 141,000. So it is said that a little more than one-third the registered voters placed on the remaining two-thirds this bonded debt; nor is that all. The one-third committed the two-thirds on a question of policy that is of far-reaching importance. For the city is definitely pledged to a large experiment in municipal ownership and operation, to a wide departure from the common practice in this country. But if those who failed to go to the polls are hostile to municipal ownership they certainly deserve no sympathy. The activity of the other side is much more admirable than their passivity. There is no temptation whatever to lament their fate. In all such cases the persons who refrain from voting eliminate themselves and give an example of very poor citizenship. Probably, however, a large percentage of those who remained away were not convinced that municipal ownership was a bad thing. Their minds were not fully made up one way or the other, and they were willing to let the city go on with its experiment.

DEPUTY CLERK ON THE CARPET.

DECLARED INSOLVENT AND TO HAVE PASSED LIE.

Circulator for Anti-Prime-Fight Petition Complaining to Board of Supervisors Which Hears Testimony given by County Clerk Leland. A notary public, the board took the matter under advisement.

According to Arnold, he went to No. 35 to file his petition and, after being rebuffed by Crippen, was told that he could give his affidavit to a "curbstone" business at the courthouse.

Crippen denied that there was any connection between his case and the case of the board. He said he had passed the short and ugly road to one of the Supervisors' chambers. He said he had been treated with discourtesy to persons.

"This sort of thing must stop," said Crippen. "We are all the members of the board here on business with very attention."

The members of the board then agreed to use of a desk in the office of the County Clerk. Hathaway said he had passed the short and ugly road to one of the Supervisors' chambers. He said he had been treated with discourtesy to persons.

SEEK SUNDAY CLOSING.

Mass Meeting of the Retail Meat Dealers Called for This Evening to Discuss Question.The retail butchers of the city have before them three propositions which they desire to have enacted into a city ordinance, but realizing that any of them would be ineffective without unanimity of action, they will hold a meeting this evening in the Chamber of Commerce to vote on the question.
Some of them are asking that an ordinance be passed by the City Council making Sunday closing compulsory, establishing a public abattoir, and appointing a special inspector for the meat markets. Only the propositions receiving the endorsement of the meeting tonight will be presented to the City Council. Among the speakers will be Meat Inspector Nelson and H. S. McCallum, attorney for the butchers. This is to be a mass meeting to which every retail meat dealer in the city has been invited and a large attendance is anticipated.

No Home Open to This Helpless Baby.

Ruth Lee, a pathetic problem.

Because she has a strain of Indian blood and a weak back nobody wants her.

"Nobody wants me!" Baby Ruth Lee would have wailed yesterday if she had been able to talk. Because she has a strain of Indian blood, and perhaps, also, because there is a weakness of the back which has not been diagnosed by physicians, the bright-eyed, daintily-dressed foundling is a hard problem for the probation officers and the Children's Home Society to solve. They have not been able to find a home for her.

Ruth is 9 months old—one of the best babies, Probation Officer Parker says, who has come into the Juvenile Court. Her mother is a half breed, now supposed to be in Arizona. The father is unknown. Because of her helplessness no home has opened to her. Her brother, Robert, a sturdy lad, is at the Peter Pan Home. Until the Juvenile Court disposes of her case, Ruth will be provided for by the Children's Home Society on Griffith avenue.

Miss Nancy Winch finds the little girl creeping into her heart and hopes some childless woman will take and care for her.

"She is such a dear, cute little baby," said Mrs. Parker. "She is just the kind to awaken sympathy. I do hope she will find a home."

BRANDS ORIGINAL CROOK. Fake Warehouse Receipts sold to Have Been Used to Swindle Money Lender.

A complaint was issued yesterday by Deputy District Attorney Blair against H. J. Mercer, charging him with having obtained money under false pretenses.

According to Blair, Mercer cannot be located by his creditors. The complaint charges him with having procured $4000 on worthless warehouse receipts.

Mercer leased a warehouse at No. 119 North Alameda street. He succeeded in borrowing money from the Provident Pledge Corporation on the receipts, which ostensibly call for 150 barrels of vinegar and 800 cases of honey. The goods are not in the warehouse, it is alleged.

WESTERN PEOPLE IN "WHO'S WHO."

ISSUED BY TIMES-MIRROR PRINTING AND BINDING HOUSE.

First Book of Its Kind Ever Published, and Covers Southern California and Arizona—Patterned After Standard British "Who's Who," and Gives Facts.

"Who's Who in the Pacific Southwest," a personal dictionary including approximately 4000 names of persons prominent in the professions, industries, arts, and, in fact, every reputable walk of life in Southern California and Arizona, is fresh from the press of the Times-Mirror Printing and Binding House.

The book itself is artistic and solid, with heavy leather binding; the typographical arrangement is perfect, and shows that the book was not only made to endure but also to be read with ease.

It is the first compilation of its kind ever issued, and impartially includes the names of those people who hold conspicuous and honored places in the life of the Pacific Southwest.

No eulogistic matter of any description has been included, and only the bare statement of facts is given in all of the sketches, which were prepared from data submitted by persons whose names are included. This arrangement is in keeping with the standard of all such works, "Who's Who," published in England, and it recognized as the only way to give an impartial and authentic biography.

There is no question but the book will be found of immense value to the business houses and members of professions in the territory that is included, as well as a handy reference book for interests operating at a distance.

"Build Pavedments which will assure a minimum of expenditure for upkeep," said President Handley of the Board of Public Works of this city, in an address before the department of engineers, "Committee and street superintendents."

"Put big-business vim into your office," said Deputy Auditor Hiaman to the department of clerks, auditors and assessors.

"Make the health boards increasingly efficient," urged Dr. R. A. Fears of Colfax, in a talk before the California Health Officers' Association, whose fifth annual meeting is being held at Venice as a subsidiary feature of the major assemblage of municipalities.

Much of many minds and of varying political faith, radicals and conservatives, opponents and proponents of municipal ownership—the voices of half the 550 delegates—were heard yesterday in the discussion of the problems of various municipal departments.

Varied as were the views presented, varied as were the suggestions, still high above all other notes rose a vibrant call for business efficiency in the administration of municipal affairs.

SEWAGE AND WATER. "Industrial and commercial organizations are battling against waste, why not us?" asked Mayor Frank K. Moft of Oakland, president of the league, in the preliminary talk at the morning general session.

The "service dividend" idea had inception at the morning general convention of delegates, where the subject of discussion was "The Biggest Problems That Have Confronted Us Since the Last Convention."

Patently, painstakingly, President Moft listened to the observations of the chairman of 179 different delegations, then said:

"Sewage and water—these two, with the franchise problem looming portentously on the horizon, seem to represent the pressing municipal problems of the State."

TALK CONTINUED. That a State whose rivers of continuous flow are few and far between has to solve a large sewage problem, was the gist of the observations of many delegates. As many times, the plea was made that a State whose future is so palpably assured must build broadly and surely, that the increased population of the years to come may have sewage systems which will assure efficiency in "carriage" and in the safeguarding of the health of the body politic.

"A dollar expended now will save our children two," said J. K. Hopkins, Councilman from Palo Alto. Salutory use of the example afforded by Los Angeles' approaching son.

DEATH OF PIONEER WOMAN. Fifty Years Resident of California and for Twenty-eight Years Treasurer of City of Ventura.

With the passing of Mrs. Elizabeth A. McDonell on Monday at the home of her son-in-law, James A. Cashion, No. 2475 Francis avenue, this city, a remarkable woman was taken from the scene of life's activities.

The deceased was aged 81 years and was a native of Canada. Just fifty years ago she crossed the isthmus and came to California with her family and settled in the northern part of the State. In 1876 they removed to Ventura, where her husband, H. H. McDonell, died, and she went into the millinery business to support her family of children. Her keenness in business soon attracted the attention of the people of Ventura, and she was appointed to the office of City Treasurer, to which she was successively reappointed for twenty-eight years, holding the position until she relinquished it, on account of her advanced age, and removed to this city four or five years ago to live with her daughter. As an evidence of the esteem in which she was held at Ventura the flag of that city was placed at half-mast immediately upon learning of her death.

Survivors, besides Mrs. Cashion of this city, the following children: Mrs. C. A. Barlow, Bakersfield; C. B. McDonell, Miss Minnie McDonell and Mrs. Scott Russell, all of Ventura. The funeral services will be conducted this morning at 9 o'clock in St. Vibiana's Cathedral.

THE RHODES SCHOLARSHIP. Candidates for the Rhodes scholarship will be interviewed at Stanford, Berkeley and Occidental on Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. All Southern California candidates will appear at Occidental, where the examinations will be conducted by Prof. W. D. Ward.

PLEDGED TO SOLVE MUNICIPAL PROBLEMS

Service Dividends for Taxpayers, With Maximum Efficiency for Minimum Investment the Keynote of the Rousing Convention of Delegates of League of California Municipalities, at Venice.

SERVICE dividends for the taxpayers. Vibrant in a score of speeches and in the informal observations of more than 100 delegates, the League of California Municipalities, meeting in Venice yesterday, pledged itself, incontrovertibly, to a solution of municipal problems which will assure the taxpayer of a maximum of service on the money invested.

"We are politicians, forgetful of politics, who make an appeal for your suffrage on a platform of efficiency," said H. A. Mason of San Francisco, Nestor of the organization and its secretary throughout the sixteen years of its existence. "We are here in the clearinghouse of the best municipal thought of the State—or, we hope we are."

CONNIE MACK

hahan and other baseball celebrities, Connie Mack did not consider baseball as a means of livelihood until after he reached manhood. Connie always loved the game and played it whenever he got the opportunity. The day came, however, which he tolled had a baseball team. And Mack was the star of the outfit.

Connie always liked to catch, ever in his juvenile days, and he backstopped for the shoe team. Before long he made the reputation of being the best amateur catcher in his town. Connie Mack was still years old when he reached the crossroads of his career. He got an offer from the manager of the Meriden (Ct.) franchise.

Connie was in a pretty pickle as to what to do. The baseball offer called for a larger weekly stipend than the shoe job, but the latter was more steady and he was sure of work all the year round. He broached the subject to his employers, and they quickly went on record with a vote against the pastime proposition.

son coracles floating in his veins and baseball appeared to him a more interesting field of endeavor than the shoe industry. In his quondam he went to Mother McGillicuddy and asked her to abide by her decision. Mrs. Mack had a little red head herself, and she told Connie he couldn't do any harm by taking a fling at the baseball game, and Mack has been mixed up with the national pastime ever since.

Mack finished the season of 1901 with a bad cold, from where he went to Hartford. He had such a cold that the Nutmeg capital for the season where his sterling playing season attracted the attention of the male

Connie's peculiar figure soon got him well known around the National League circuit. Mack stands six feet four inches in his stocking feet, and no one has ever accused him of being corpulent. When he first broke into the fast set he was even thinner than

In Washington they hooked him up with a slim pitcher named Glimmer and with Glimmer and a few more players, a mouse and the country as the "Silver Battery." Another member of the old Washington hurling corps was Mac, and Mac was a good one. He was Hank O'Day, the National League umpire, and a former manager of the King of Clumps, Hank Pank. They were a fine line, and they had the Reds in first place for a few weeks, but that is not saying much. Mac was a good one, and he crowned him after his team topped into the second division.

Mac spent the Senator's game for the first time in Washington. He had been there in 1887, 1888 and 1889. The Old-timers will recall the rule by which a batter was out if the catcher caught a foul tick on the first bound. Mack was one of the first catchers to wear a big mitt, and he had a little strap attached to it through which he could almost get a perfect imitation of a foul tick. It got so that

In order to stop the nuisance, the National League passed a rule that no straps or appendages could be worn on catching gloves. Mack's name was not mentioned, but the rule was meant for Connie. However, Cornellus was not to be put off as easily as that. By patient practice he got a still better imitation by snapping his left thumb nail against the leather

Lots of tricks were pulled in baseball twenty years ago which would not get by today. They show how the game has progressed. For instance, there was the old Baltimore trick of planting balls in the outfield. Connie once struck on the idea of freezing a box of baseballs. The balls were placed over night in a little safe in the Pittsburgh club's office which was

FROZEN BALLS DO IT.

Mack then fixed it so that the Pirates would bat first. The balls to be used in the game were not taken out of the safe until a few minutes before the start of the game. Then the four Pirates hammered the frozen balls for long drives. They left the bat like golf balls. However, by the time the visiting team took their bat, the balls were so hot that they could not be knocked out of the infield. George Moreland, to whom I am indebted for most of these anecdotes, tells me that the pitcher had about a dozen innings in this game. But by getting first to bat and hitting the balls while they were Mack never amounted to much in the averages as a batter, though he was worth more to his team than most of the men who hit much better in the baseball guides. Connie was of a type of batter something like Jack Barry, the famous Athletic shortstop, who is one of the best men in the pinch in the American League.

Like John McGraw of the Giants, Mack's career as a player was brought to a premature end by a violent blow to the head. In 1903 Pittsburgh and Boston were having a neck-and-neck race for the flag, and during a crucial series between the contending clubs Herman Long, the old Boston star, now dead, slid forcibly into Mack and broke his leg at the knee. The blow would have been fatal, in the world to accuse Long of deliberately maiming him, though there were ugly rumors at the time and there was no denying that Boston benefited by getting Mack out of the Cowan line-up. Mack's acci-

It is the only hair restorative that has been scientifically proven and tested, and has been found to be completely guaranteed inevitable, and cannot be prevented. Newbro's Herpsids will do it.

To successfully eradicate dandruff, the germ that causes it, must be destroyed. This is accomplished by Newbro's Herpsids and original remedy compounded in harmony with the germ theory of dandruff.

The Herpsids in Newbro's Herpsids and dandruff and falling hair is evidenced by thousands who use it daily. Not only does it prevent the accumulation of scurf skin but it is checked, but the tiny microbe growth, which would cause the dandruff, cannot be totally exterminated.

It is the only hair restorative that has the hair and the desire for a clean, healthy scalp always justifies the intelligent use of a reliable hair restorative.

LOW RATES

Mack's first managerial experience was with the 1904 team, which was neither a wonderful success nor a failure. The club he took over in the fall of 1904 consisted of some brilliant players, but as a club they were a hard-drinking lot, whose lack of concentration was realized in the fact that they might have been any victory. Having associated with those men for years as a private, Mack was in no position to come as a reformer, as baseball had not yet risen to the point where priests and moral cleaners were two or three of the necessary attributes of the successful player.

Mack's players liked and respected him, but they liked the good times system of management. He went after young players and impressed upon them that they would have to keep in condition or find other employment. "No room for slackers," was one of Connie's mottoes. He only broke that once, in the case of Rube Waddell, but Rube won two pennants for Mack and Connie thinks Rube had more natural stuff than any other pitcher who ever lived.

Much has been written about Mack's sphinxlike actions in a crucial ball game and in his entire career as a player and manager he has been

As the Tigers went into their half of the ninth inning the Philadelphia team led by a score of 3 to 5. Crawford, the first batter up, hit Waddell for a single, after which Cobb tied the score with a home run drive over the center field fence. White hit over the right field fence.

speed of sixty miles or more an hour. The new service, according to Mr. Geyler, is the most successful factor in his Chicago garage. Many of the calls for assistance which the garage receives are for trifling misadjustments, which a skilled mechanic can repair in a moment's time. As soon as the call comes in the emergency mechanic jumps on the motorcycle, and is at the broken-down machine in a very few minutes.

Return Home. Miss Camille Dotter of Louisville, Ky., who has been passing the past year with her aunt, Mrs. Ida M. Paupery of No. 165 South Alexandria avenue, will leave on the 30th inst. for her home.

Adams-Winston Wedding. The Mt. Washington Hotel was chosen as the setting for the wedding of Miss Lela Adams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Adams of Highland Park, and Charles S. Winston of Chicago, Ill. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. William Horace Day, pastor of the First Congregational Church, and the music was in charge of Mrs. George A. Howard of this city, who rendered several of Carrie Jacobs Bond's compositions.

Miss Adams, who was given away by her father, was garbed in white, charming and charmingly lovely. Following the service, breakfast was served to the guests. Both young people are popular, and Mr. Winston is president of the Alumni Association of the Chicago University. Santa Barbara, San Francisco and Victoria will be visited before the young people return to Chicago to reside.

Wedded in Tucson. Miss Christina Weiss, who has made her home in this city for a number of years with Mrs. George M. Munger, No. 1223 Hobart boulevard, left Monday afternoon for Tucson, where she was married Tuesday to Fred Mest of El Paso. Mr. and Mrs. Mest left immediately after the ceremony for El Paso, where they will make their home.

Arrowhead Notes. Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Ahlwards of Pasadena, whose wedding last week was one of the society events of that city, arrived at Arrowhead Hotel Friday evening and are enjoying their honeymoon amid the many delightful nooks and canyons which abound at this charming mountain resort.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Haines of Los Angeles are enjoying a sojourn at the Arrowhead Hotel, en route home from a trip through the Grand Canyon. They are observed with the delightful fall weather in the mountains.

Another Wedding. Mrs. Alice L. Stevens announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Lella May Stevens, to William Charles Bach. The lines were said Friday, October 2, in this city. Mr. and Mrs. Bach will be at home to friends at 1140 North 11th street, at No. 1140 North 11th street.

Dinner Party. Fourteen guests were entertained at a prettily appointed dinner given by Dr. and Mrs. Edwin O. Palmer at their home on York street in compliment to Dr. and Mrs. Backman of Rochester, Minn. A basket of yellow blooms brightened the dining-table.

Other guests were Dr. and Mrs. Richard Gillen, Dr. and Mrs. Polan, Dr. and Mrs. Walter B. Deering, Dr. and Mrs. Lowell C. Frost, Miss Clara Palmer and Dr. John Wilson.

public wants and it will have it, even if it has to make excuses in order to see it.

I was going to write a story for this month about Ethel McDonough, who is now at the Orpheum in song and dance, to go with her picture, but the world series got me so excited that I couldn't write a whole column in less than a duty begrudgingly done to keep me in the good graces of the managing editor.

But I will say this in passing that it is really difficult to recognize in Ethel McDonough the "Divine Myrna" of a last year's Empire bill, who did a diving act, or to go back farther to the Fadedette and single out the drummer girl who was the individual hit of the greatest of all feminine orchestras ever organized and who was typical of the Gibson drawings of that period. But all three are one and the same person, which only goes to show that Ethel is versatile as well as successful.

And now, ladies and gentlemen, I am going to give you fair warning. I have a whole trunk full of plays and operas. Oh, yes, I wrote the words and music all myself, but I never had the nerve to spring them.

But now I have discovered that Othman Stevens of the Examiner has had one accepted for early production. So now I am going to send my trunk to Othman Stevens and dare him to open it.

Her Superb Presentation of Twelfth Night Appreciated by Only Limited Audience at the Mason—Scene Within Oriental Chamber More Than Sumptuous. "As You Like It" Tonight's Attraction.

BY HENRY CHRISTEEN WARNACK.

LOS ANGELES people howl for the fine and good in the drama. They get it and they do not go. "The Love" and "The Traffic" they condemn with bitterness, but they all the houses which play them. These pieces are badly written and poorly played, yet the people seem mad over them. They say they hate them, but they make them with their presence and their money.

Margaret Anglin comes to the city with three Shakespearean plays which have cost her $65,000 to produce and support herself with a company of brilliant people. What is the result? The company is larger than the audience.

Perhaps the people think they have outgrown Shakespeare, or it may be they think there is no Shakespeare since the death of Edwin Booth and the marriage of Julia Marlowe. Well, Miss Anglin's Shakespeare is something different. It is as light and as delicious as any modern drama, and her settings are more sumptuous than those of any grand opera.

I perfectly understand that the people have it in for Shakespeare and that they have a mutual association for his suppression. I know that for years they have united in the punishment of any person who would attempt to play him. At the same time it was not unreasonable to hope that a company of so much ability and sustained by all of the scenic effects which imagination and money could procure.

It was not unreasonable to hope for this, but the confidence was misplaced. The people will not have even the comedy and the drama of Shakespeare though it be offered by a queen of the stage and a glittering galaxy of cohorts.

It is quite the habit of writers to say that a thing is indescribable and then proceed to describe it, or to say that it is incomparable and straightway make comparisons. Miss Anglin's voice is like that. It is a little silver lute of a voice which breathing might say is like the wind's bubbling or a bird's warble. It paints pictures of spring between liquid cadences. The music stops to listen.

"The Love," they were told, has made a hit in New York. Father Knickerbocker, declaring that it is a great moral lesson. Oh, well, it just bears out what I said the other day. That is the spirit of play the up-to-date

Man of Means Commits Suicide by Shooting While Laboring Under Hallucination.

George H. Stratton, a man of considerable means, who had lived in this city fifteen years, committed suicide by shooting himself yesterday in his little store at Thirty-seventh street and University place. For a number of years he had been living with his wife at the Burlington apartments and had an office in the Central building, for convenience in transacting his business. He is said to have left property at Santa Monica valued at $40,000, and stocks and bonds amounting to half as much more. He was a Knight Templar thirty-second degree Mason, a Shriner and an Elk. For some time he had been troubled with mental aberrations and recently bought the little store referred to, for the purpose of diverting his mind from other things, and his suicide is believed to be due entirely to his disturbed mental condition, as he was possessed of ample means. Arrangements for the funeral will be delayed until his relatives in New Jersey can be communicated with. He was aged about 40 years.

SEEK CONTROL OF OIL FIELDS.

Dutch-Shell Combine After General Petroleum.

Only Matter of the Price Is Delaying the Deal.

Properties Involved Held at Over Hundred Million.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF

THE TIMES, Oct. 7.—[Exclusive

Dispatch.] The impression prevails in the financial district that the only thing separating General Petroleum and the Dutch-Shell combine is the question of price. It is now reported that the foreign syndicate offered De Sabia $40 a share for the control of

city for New York, but he held out for $50, contending that this was the intrinsic worth of the stock.

In a recent statement De Sabia placed the assets of General Petroleum at approximately $40,000,000, while the debt, both funded and floating, amounted to about $20,000,000. This would leave $20,000,000 to distribute among 400,000 shares of stock, provided all the $5,000,000 notes are converted.

In commenting today on the likelihood of this deal going through, a prominent oilman said:

"Up to the present the Dutch-Shell has purchased three producing oil properties at a cost of $11,500,000.

This shows that the combine is in the California oil business to stay. Now the Dutch-Shell can stand either the competition for markets as a weak third in a three-cornered fight against the Standard and Union or it can gain control of Union and begin the fight on an equal footing with the Standard. I estimate that it would cost the Dutch-Shell about $15,000,000 to provide duplicate facilities that might take many years to justify the investment. In building pipe lines and refineries the foreigners would be installing plants beyond the capacity already required by the oil business.

"To a banker it might seem like an extravagant place of business to buy stock at 45 or 50 that is selling in the market for 15, but if by doing so the Dutch-Shell obviated the necessity of engaging in a three-cornered fight extending over a long period of years, the deal might appear like a bargain.

"There are various speculations as to just what nature the pending transactions will take, but it is said not to be likely that the Dutch-Shell will buy the entire holdings of local interests. Whether the foreigners will buy a control or merely a large interest seems to be in doubt. That ample funds will be provided to carry on operations is conceded, and the retirement of the outstanding bonds will probably be made a part of the plan.

"The consummation of this deal would give the Dutch-Shell control of oil properties in this State having aggregate assets of more than $121-

$60,000. The last report of Union Oil

General Petroleum reports assets of approximately $40,000,000. The price paid for California Oil Fields Limited,

W. K. Oil and Turner Oil company was $16,500,000, which probably represents pretty well the value of the properties."
